Example

Shown here is a concrete example of how costs and charges can affect the value of an investment over time.

To show more clearly how the charges affect the value of the investment, the example assumes that there is no change in the value of the actual investment during the period, since such changes in value vary between different periods and different products. In the example, the charges are accumulated over the years. The amounts are shown in SEK.

Time period	Annual return before charges	Gross return	Charges	Return after charges
0-3 months	0.000%	0	110	-110
